

kindex[®]

< Scan QR to view this original record online, or visit <https://jfk.kindex.org/s/444224>

Title: 157-10014-10242_p37.png

Category: Uncategorized

Provenance:

Person:

Date:

5.

value.

The Brading "rap sheet" contained an incredible 35 separate entries covering virtually every phase of criminal activity, including mail fraud, embezzlement, operating a gambling house in Miami, car theft, shoplifting, receiving stolen property, and selling wartime gas ration coupons on the black market.

NW 50955 DocId:32423630 Page 37

Most of these arrests had been made under the name of Eugene Hale Brading, but the police dossier on him also showed a handful of other aliases, including Harry Eugene Bradley, Gene Brady, James Lee Cole, James Bradley Lee, and inevitably, Jim Braden.

"Jim Braden" was the last entry shown on Brading's records.

Incredibly, investigator Noyes found that due to the fact that the Dallas police had not fingerprinted Jim Braden or run a make on him, his true identity of Eugene Brading was never discovered by the FBI or the Warren Commission at the time of their investigation of the assassination. The Warren Commission had only routinely included Braden's short statement about being in Dallas on "oil business" in a police exhibit of witnesses contained in Warren Commission Hearing's Volume XV. Jim Braden and his story had been accepted at face