5. Our query why Adelaide, if she had AMBIDEX-1's interests at heart, appeared to have qualms about owning up in respect to past events, was parried by AMBIDEX-1 by claiming that Adelaide was of course aware of all these rumors and had warned him of possible political embarrassment.

6. Evaluating UFA 16512 on the basis of our talk with AMBIDEX-1, we conclude that its main source has a high batting average. At least there appears to be a hard core of truth to practically all allegations made, to the extent we were able to check them out. We would venture the guess that, despite his protestations to the contrary, AMBIDEX-1 is rather conversant with Adelaide's past history, but can see no practical gain in retelling it. We may reason that an avowal of intent to marry a woman whose antecedents are in fact as described, would seriously blemish his image and that by pleading ignorance he may, if things should get out of control, always strike a pose of injured innocence and elicit a "there but for the Grace of God go I" reaction from his PRIMUS associates.

7. Agreement that all interested parties would benefit by moving Adelaide's abode from the WAVE area to Nicaragua was reached on the basis of AMBIDEX-1's acceptance of our flat statement that we view Adelaide as a potential hazard to AMBIDEX-1 and his prosperity. We based this reasoning upon numerous indications that Adelaide had become all but completely privy to everything that was going on in AMBIDEX-1 and that her discretion left a great deal to be desired. We drew no dissent from AMBIDEX-1 when stating that Adelaide had become victim of the WAVE training course and that she presumably no longer could separate AMBIDEX-1 from AMBIDEX-1. We referred to Adelaide's blatant remarks about testing that we suspected her of holding subversive membership, and that battery was mentioned by men like AMBIDEX and Louis CARO. This statement was followed by a few moments believed to be in Adelaide's complete confidence, AMBIDEX-1 evinced surprise and appreciation similar to that shown in the past when we have been successful in improving or breaking up Adelaide's circle of relations and confidence as an indispensable prerequisite for eliminating threats and her access to information. We consider our classified progress toward making AMBIDEX-1's circle sure that no member of this group would follow her to Nicaragua.
