6. GIVE PARTICULARS CONCERNING PRESENT NATIONALITY:

Although I was born in Brooklyn, the Russian government considered me as a Russian citizen, even though I had never handed in an application for Soviet citizenship. Due to this, and because I was in a rush to leave the country, I arrived here on a Soviet foreign passport. In the U.S. Embassy in Moscow I filled in several carefully set applications for entry into the U.S.A.: one as an immigrant and the other as an American citizen. I received a passport in the U.S. dated October 10, 1952. After arrival the Board of Appeals of the Dept. of State reinstated my native-born citizenship.
